A shapeshifting alien species known as the Jinseokonians lived mutually and peacefully among humans for decades. They kept their existence hidden from humanity to avoid any conflict. The shapeshifters viewed their abilities as an art form, and had no malicious intent against Earth. However, a small faction of them, the Jinns, had murdered the leaders of Earth, took over their lives, and ruled Earth's governments. They threw every country into a massive conflict with each other, to the point the human race was sure to be doomed.

It took the bravery of a few Jinseokonians to unmask the imposters in an act to save all of humanity. The coup from the Jinns had left bitter and violent racism toward all Jinseokonians. It caused a massive witch hunt to shapeshifters, peaceful or not. There was a push for mass xenocide. This hysteria even made the humans believe each other was a shapeshifter, which caused them to kill one another due to mistaken identities and false accusations.

The distrust against shapeshifters had grown deep roots into society. Those who survived the brutal slaughter were registered, marked, and rounded into concentration camps. Once the humans rebuilt their governments, they had a peace treaty signed with the Jinseokonians. Jinseokonians were allowed to live freely among humans again, as long as they never shapeshifted into another form.

WOOHOO!

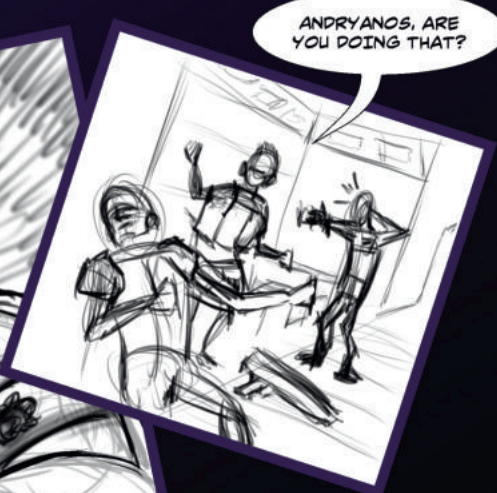

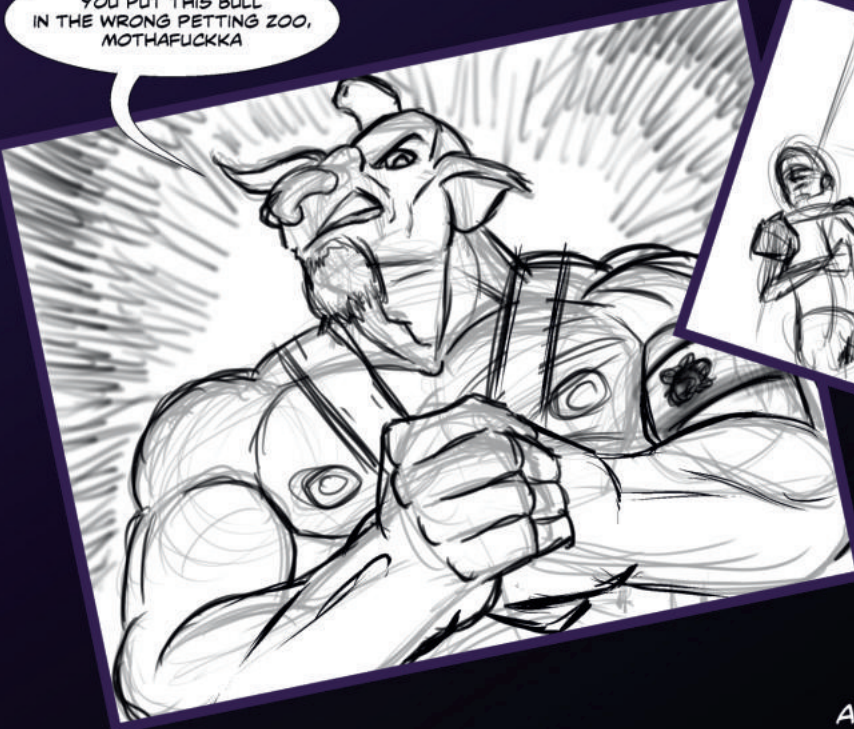

SO,
CAPTURED,
EH?

YUP.
